BRIEF SUMMARY

Anastasiya Cheredova is an independent arbitrator and Russian law expert with more than 15 years of experience in international arbitration and dispute resolution. She has extensive experience in cross-border arbitration proceedings conducted under the HKIAC, SCC, ICC, LMAA, Russian Arbitration Centre (RAC), International Arbitration Court at the Belarusian Chamber of Commerce and Industry (IAC at BelCCI), and the International Commercial Arbitration Court at the Russian Chamber of Commerce and Industry (ICAC), as well as in litigation before Russian courts and foreign courts, including in the United Kingdom, Italy, Austria and Georgia.

Her professional expertise covers construction, engineering and infrastructure disputes, commercial and corporate disputes, as well as matters involving international sanctions. A significant part of her practice relates to disputes arising out of EPC contracts and major infrastructure and industrial projects in the energy and industrial sectors.

Prior to establishing her independent practice, Anastasiya served as Head of Litigation at a major Russian metallurgical holding, where she oversaw the group's most significant disputes, including more than 50 arbitration proceedings across leading arbitral institutions and litigation in multiple jurisdictions. In this role she also supervised a litigation team of 29 lawyers and coordinated dispute strategies for more than 20 distressed investment projects with a total value exceeding RUB 140 billion.

Earlier in her career, Anastasiya worked for leading Russian law firms including VEGAS LEX, Monastyrsky, Zyuba, Stepanov & Partners, Ivanyan & Partners and Egorov, Puginsky, Afanasiev & Partners, where she advised on complex international arbitration and cross-border disputes.

She is also regularly engaged as an expert on Russian law in foreign court proceedings, including the preparation of expert opinions for German state courts and the High Court of Justice of England and Wales.

Anastasiya is a Member of the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators (MCiarb) and has been recognised by international and Russian legal rankings including Best Lawyers, The Legal 500 EMEA, Kommersant and Pravo-300.

She is fluent in Russian and English.
